3.1 Additional information about the lawful basis to process personal data

The table above shows the applicable lawful basis to process the personal data by purpose. In this section, you can find additional details of the legitimacy of the processing:

GRIFOLS

- Consent: Data subjects may provide their consent through the data collection forms, by clicking acceptance buttons or ticking boxes, replying to e-mails or making any other affirmative clear action. Data subjects may withdraw their consent at any time, as set out in Section 6.
- Execution of a contract: Failure to provide the personal data requested by Grifols could result in the impossibility of executing or maintaining such contract.
- Legitimate interest (of Grifols and/or third parties): Grifols is interested in contributing to the advancement of scientific knowledge and research in a secure environment with the aim of guaranteeing people's health. Therefore, Grifols pursues the following legitimate interests which override the fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subjects, given that the processing is within the data subjects' reasonable expectations based on their relationship with Grifols:
  - Prevention of fraud,
  - Direct marketing
  - Daily management of a multinational group of companies and internal administration, which means sharing information with the companies of the Grifols group, and
  - Creation of a secure information system infrastructure for preventing unlawful or malicious activities that may compromise the personal data.

In any event, data subjects may request further information on the legitimate interest or exercise their right to object to the processing of their personal data based on legitimate interest by addressing their request to privacy@grifols.com.

- Legal obligation (article 6.1(c) of GDPR): applies when the processing of personal data is necessary for Grifols to comply with legal obligations. Section 7 includes details of the specific regulations applicable to Grifols that require the processing of personal data. Failure to provide the personal data requested could result in the impossibility for Grifols to comply with such legal obligations.

The processing of special categories of personal data is only permitted in compliance with the data protection regulations applicable in each country. See Section 7 for more information.

By accepting the installation of these cookies, clicking on these plugins or performing similar actions, users' personal data (including IP address and browsing data) may be transferred to the providers of these technologies, including providers of social networks, and Grifols is not responsible for the subsequent processing that these providers may carry out with this personal data. The purpose and scope of the collection of data and its subsequent processing and use by the providers of these technologies, as well as the related rights and the possibilities of configuring privacy settings, can be consulted in the data protection information of each of these companies.

Specific information on the appropriate safeguards applicable to each international data transfer can be obtained from Grifols at privacy@grifols.com.

Grifols does not share personal data with any other third party unless it is authorized by the data subject or required by the applicable law.

5. Sources of personal data

If data subjects do not directly provide Grifols with their personal data, Grifols may obtain the personal data from event organizers databases and public sources, such as websites and publications from the healthcare sector, professional social networks or social listening tools (that is, tools aimed at identifying and evaluating the market's perception about a specific brand, product, company, topic or problem).
